

Wendy's Reflections

ATONEMENT

I'm realizing in this moment that atonement is very different than revelation. Many times in my spiritual practice I have experienced them both at the same time. They often go hand in hand. Today, they walk separately. Both moving with purpose and both arriving at their right and perfect time.

I am at-one with the presence and power within all that is. I am at-one with my Divine nature. I am at-one with my body, mind, and spirit. My mind is silent. My heart is open. My being is attuned to God right now. Revelation is always welcome, invited, and will arrive at its appropriate time. For now I will enjoy the quiet stillness of my soul that is reflecting like a placid lake, mirroring the beauty of all that surrounds the moment.